

Class Notes Sep 2017 Issue

I put a call out for notes and got a few notes, not many but a few.

Another one of our own has been selected for the Academy Athletic Hall of Fame. Bill Zack is to be inducted this October during Homecoming festivities. He is being recognized for his rowing accomplishments not only at the Academy but also for his extensive involvement with the National teams. Congratulations.

John Cordes and his wife Diane opened their home in Sunnyvale CA for the Silicon Valley Tour De Coop in September to encourage folks to have backyard chickens. I have backyard chickens but they are in my neighbor's backyard! I'm just glad they don't allow roosters!

Nick Dujmovic checked in with news that he's in the second year of his third career as a professor, teaching intelligence and politics at the Catholic University of America in D.C. His program had a very successful first year, bringing in lots of speakers (including Michael Hayden) and establishing a minor in Intelligence Studies. He said he now feels old because during one event he brought in the Chief of Coast Guard Intelligence, Rear Admiral Rob Hayes ('87) to speak. Rob had been one of his students at CGA when he taught there in the late 80s.

Mike Neussl checked in with a visit with Mike Inman at the Sector North Bend Change of Command in July. Martha and he are enjoying the fully retired life after his second stint with the Alaska Marine Highway ended in May. Mike Inman continues to stay in the Seattle area and is involved with the Coast Guard Foundation. He asked me to help with the Foundation dinner but I was going to be on a five day backpacking trip in the North Cascades and wasn't able to help out.

George Heintz had a close encounter of a different kind. He was at the Coast Guard Heritage Museum on Cape Cos and came across the attached photo recognizing the "Women of the Class of 80". That's about all I have for now. If you haven't found the Class of 80 Facebook page check it out, there are a lot of tidbits that get posted there that I don't repeat here as they are already "seen". Until next time.
