matt roudane is president of class of '71

After winning second place for their Homecoming float, the senior class held a fund raising "Class of '71" social, featuring Dave Redmond's group. The money from this and other projects went to the establishment of, as their class' gift, the first student lounge.

Class officers for 1970-71 were (right) Matt Roudane, president; Steve Miller, treasurer; Joan Gambini, secretary; and Rick Hayes, vice president.

Although it sometimes seemed to some that little was accomplished in the meetings, several seniors did attend the scheduled sessions of the Student League General Assembly, did take part in the discussions and did keep their classmates informed of the issues.

Seniors Joanne Erickson, Clare Novak, Jan Kajiwara, Martha Jacobson, and Steve Condon (left) became eligible for National Merit Scholarships on the basis of their test scores, extra-curricular activities, special achievements, and academic records. These five outstanding seniors thus became our representatives in the top one-half of one per cent in the nation's 1971 graduating class.

virginia judd is homemaker of tomorrow

Glenbard West named Ginnie Judd (right) as its Betty Crocker Homemaker of Tomorrow. Ginnie scored highest on a test administered to all interested girls and became eligible for state and national competition. In an interview with the Glen Bard, Ginnie said that she thought that the title of the test should be changed to Future Home Economist, because homemaker, to some, meant housekeeper. To Ginnie, a career in home economics meant dietetics, advertising design, decorating, food science, fashion design, and other fields.
