

WASHINGTON MAP SOCIETY

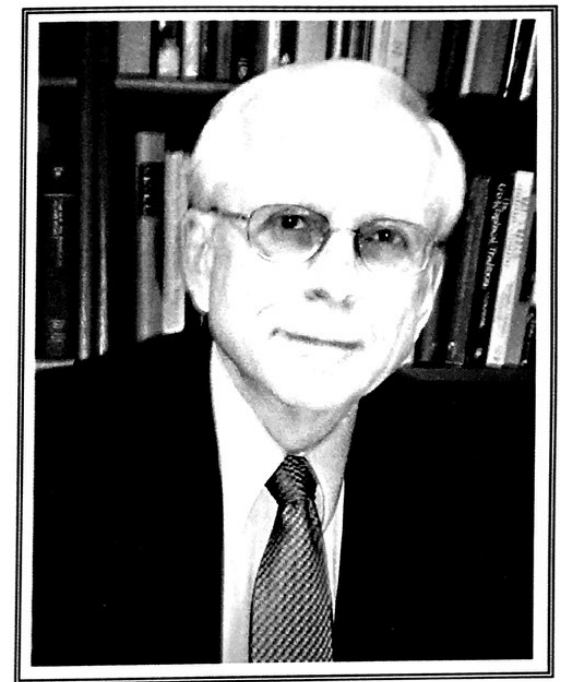

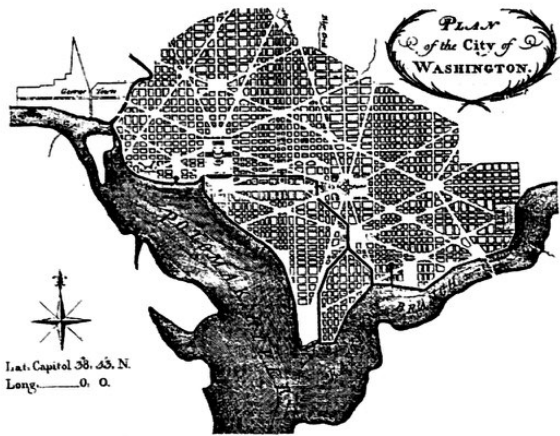

25th ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION

1979 - 2004

MAPS & MEMORIES

PROGRAM

May 20, 21 & 22, 2004

Welcome to the silver anniversary celebration of the Washington Map Society.

On May 2, 1979, seventeen persons with interests in maps and mapmaking met in the Geography and Map Division of the Library of Congress at the invitation of Jonathan Lanman and Walter W. Ristow to discuss the creation of a local map society. Much has changed since that first meeting twenty-five years ago. The Geography and Map Division, then located in a large warehouse on the outskirts of Alexandria, Virginia, is now situated in the Library's Madison Building on Capitol Hill. The Washington Map Society has grown to more than 350 members worldwide. During the intervening years, our Society has sponsored some 150 lectures and field trips; introduced a serial journal, The Portolan (October 10, 1984), and supported a number of young scholars through the establishment of the Ristow Prize. In 1990, we hosted the first meeting of the International Map Collectors Society (IMCoS) in North America. In 1996 past President John Docktor established the Society's website, the first map society website in the United States (www.washmap.org).

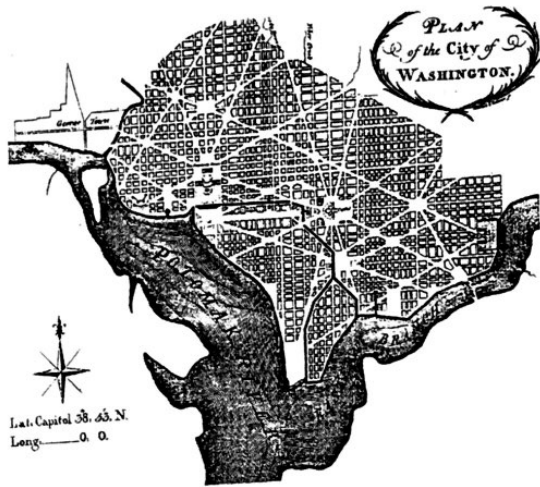

The Twenty-fifth Anniversary Committee, under the excellent leadership of William A. Stanley, has developed an exciting three-day program of lectures, social events, and tours. Bert Johnson is coordinating a history of the Society, which will be mailed to all members later this year.

On behalf of the Washington Map Society, I want to express appreciation to the many individuals and companies that have provided additional support for this celebration through donations of fund, goods, and services. Their names are listed in the pages that follow.

Sincerely,

Ralph E. Ehrenberg

Ralph E. Ehrenberg
President, Washington Map Society, 2003-2004

Dear Fellow Members and Friends of the Society:

As we celebrate our Twenty-fifth Anniversary, I would like to take this opportunity to thank those within the Washington Map Society who have contributed to this celebratory occasion. These individuals have given their time and professional ability over the past 10 months to insure the success of the event. I would also like to thank our sponsors for their generosity, for without whose financial support, this event would not be possible.

Additionally, I would like to thank our President, Ralph Ehrenberg for his professional leadership, our Board of Directors, and the sponsoring firms that have also lent not only financial support but their business talents in the development of the anniversary.

We are pleased that our symposium has such distinguished speakers as Richard W. Stephenson, first specialist in Cartographic History, Library of Congress; Anne Kelly Knowles, Assistant Professor of Geography, Middlebury College, Vermont; Christopher Lane, The Philadelphia Print Shop, Expert-PBS's Antiques Roadshow; and Hubert O. Johnson III, past President, Washington Map Society.

Sincerely,

William A. Stanley, Chairman
25th Anniversary Steering Committee

To those interested in antique maps:

Collecting rare and historic maps has interested an increasing number of individuals in recent years. To share this interest, map collectors, and others who appreciate the beauty and fascination of old maps and charts, have formed map societies in such centers as Boston, Chicago, and Ann Arbor, Michigan.

There appear to be a sufficient number of map collectors in the Washington area to warrant forming a local map society. We are fortunate in having available in this area the excellent cartographic collections of the Library of Congress, National Archives, Smithsonian institution, and the many private and public museums and galleries, as well as a number of reputable old map and print dealers.

Because of your recognized interest in old maps, we invite you to attend a meeting, at 8:00 p.m. on Wednesday, May 2, to consider the feasibility of organizing a Washington map society. The meeting will be held in the rooms of the Library of Congress Geography and Map Division, 845 South Pickett Street, Alexandria, Virginia. A leaflet giving access information is enclosed.

After essential business is completed, Dr. John Wolter, Chief of the Geography and Map Division, and members of his staff will conduct tours of the division, and display some of its cartographic treasures.

It obviously has not been possible, for this first meeting, to reach all prospective map society members. Feel free, therefore, to invite husbands or wives and other interested friends to the May 2 meeting.

Should you be interested in the proposed society, and are unable to attend the meeting, please send a note to the address below, indicating your interest.

A Short History of the Washington Map Society

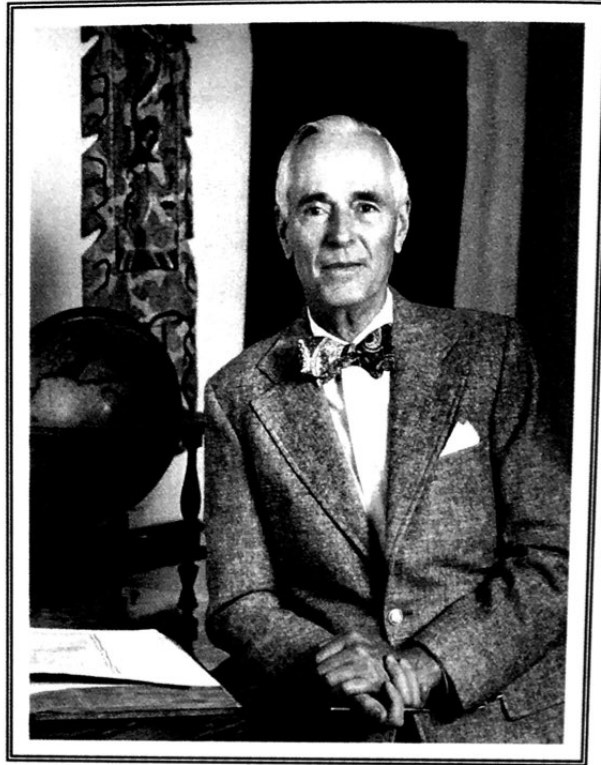

In 1979, Walter W. Ristow and Jonathan Lanman founded the Washington Map Society (WMS). Dr. Ristow is one of America's premier map historians and former Chief of the Geography and Map Division (GMD) of the Library of Congress (LoC). Dr. Lanman was his close friend and a prominent map collector. The Society's first meeting was held on May 2, 1979, in the GMD, then in Alexandria, Virginia. Attendees included Federal librarians and archivists, Federal and university cartographers, and collectors. Officers for the first year were Dr. Ristow as Chair, Ralph Ehrenberg as Vice-Chairman, and Dr. Lanman as Secretary/Treasurer. The Society was invited to meet in the GMD reading room, beginning the long, albeit unofficial, relationship between the two. When the GMD moved to its present home on Capitol Hill later that year, the WMS moved with it.

The Portolan, edited by Dr. Lanman, debuted in October 1984. It was more newsletter than journal, but even the first issue contained a short article by Dr. Ristow on the early cartography of Virginia's Northern Neck, and Eric Wolf published his first bibliography entitled "Recent Publications," still a much-read feature today. Whereas the first issue contained eight pages, the most recent issues have had 76 or 80 pages, under the leadership of long-time editor Tom Sander. It has a current index on the WMS web site.

The nineties were a decade of milestones. In October 1990, the Society sponsored the Eighth International Symposium of the International Map Collectors' Society (IMCoS), spear-headed by Eric Wolf. With such speakers as Helen Wallis and Brian Harley, the event drew over 200 persons from the US and abroad, and WMS emerged much better known than before. In August 1991 the Society was incorporated as a non-profit organization in the District of Columbia, and soon thereafter received 501(c)3 status from the IRS as a charitable educational institution. The Ristow Prize research competition honoring our co-founder began in 1993 under chair Nancy Miller, and was first awarded in 1994. The Society was the first of its kind to have a web site, established by webmaster John Docktor in 1996.

Our earliest known membership roster, from February 1980, lists 49 names, all but two in Washington, Maryland, or Virginia. Fifteen of those names are still on the roster today. In 1999 the Society revamped its membership role. Bert Johnson became our first Membership Chair and a membership data base was created. The changes led to several years of rapid growth, resulting in today's membership of well over 350. About half our members now live outside the greater Washington area, in about thirty states of the Union and ten other countries. Many, including two dozen universities and national libraries, belong primarily for The Portolan.

The Founders

Jonathan T. Lanman

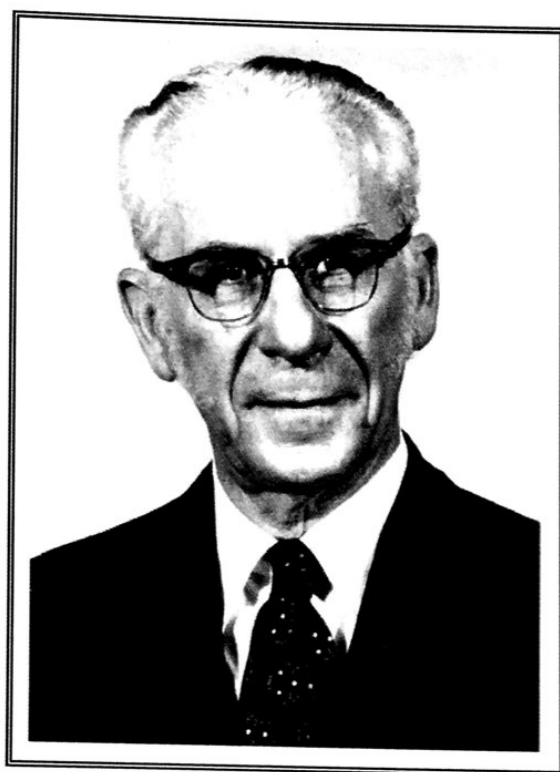

Jonathan Lanman, cofounder of The Washington Map Society, was also Editor, since its inception in 1964 and until early 1988, of the Society's serial publication, The Portolan. He was the second president of The Washington Map Society.

Born in 1908, Dr. Lanman, a medical doctor, served in the U.S. Navy in the Far East during World War II, and at the end of his medical career in 1978 was director of the Center for Research for Mothers and Children, at the National Institutes of Health, Bethesda, Maryland.

Jonathan Lanman early exhibited an interest in cartography, and he acquired his first historical maps while still an undergraduate. His wartime service in the Far East stimulated an interest in early Asian cartography. It was during the last quarter century of his life, however, that he focused major attention on augmenting his collection of maps and globes, and immersing himself in the literature on the history of cartography.

After retiring, Dr. Lanman's major interests were his cartographic collection, and study, research, and writing about old maps and globes. He read scholarly papers at several International Conferences on the History of Cartography, and at national meetings of The Society for the History of Discoveries. In late 1987, Chicago's Newberry Library published Lanman's On the Origin of Portolan Charts. During his declining months Dr. Lanman composed a book that relates his joys and satisfactions in collecting and studying old maps and globes. Completed just days before his death in 1988, it is titled, Glimpses of History from Old Maps. The distinguished Lanman collection of early maps and globes has enriched Yale University's Map Library.

The Founders

Walter W. Ristow

Walter W. Ristow, cofounder of The Washington Map Society, was the Society's first president.

Born in 1908, he earned his PhD. degree in Geography in 1937 and saw service in U. S. Army Military Intelligence during World War II. Dr. Ristow subsequently served as the chief of the map division of the New York Public Library, and from 1946 to 1978 as assistant chief, associate chief, and then sixth chief of the Geography and Map Division of the Library of Congress. During this period, he contributed significantly to the establishment of the Association of American Geographers as its first secretary in 1947, the creation of the Geography and Map Libraries Section of the International Federation of Library Associations in 1968, and the work of the U. S. Board on Geographic Names.

Dr. Ristow is widely recognized for his contribution to the literature of historical cartography and the history of cartography. Author and editor of more than 130 articles and books, his publications include such basic works as the Guide to the History of Cartography, and A La Carte: Selected Papers on Maps and Atlases, and American Maps and Mapmakers: Commercial Cartography in the Nineteenth Century.

To honor one of the nation's premier map librarians for his significant leadership role in promoting and professionalizing that field and the history of cartography, the Washington Map Society in May 1994 began the annual award of the Walter W. Ristow Prize in the History of Cartography and Map Librarianship.

History of Sponsorship Levels

Sponsorship Names

Pierre Charles L'Enfant (1754-1825)

French artist, architect and engineer. Prepared the basic plan of the City of Washington (1791), which is now housed in the Geography and Map Division of the Library of Congress.

Andrew Ellicott (1754 -1820)

Boundary surveyor. Surveyed and mapped the District of Columbia, 1791-93. Redrew L'Enfant's plan of the City of Washington for publication. Later, surveyed frontier between the United States and Spanish Florida and taught mathematics at West Point.

Benjamin Banneker (1731- 1806)

Free-Black tobacco farmer; self-taught mathematician, astronomer and surveyor. Author of 29 editions of an almanac for Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, and Virginia. Conducted astronomical observations and calculations for Andrew Ellicott's survey of the boundary of the District of Columbia, 1791.

Nicholas King (1771-1812)

English land surveyor. Appointed first Surveyor of the City of Washington, 1803 – 1812. Prepared a number of maps for the War Department associated with the earliest explorers of Louisiana Territory and the Far West – Lewis and Clark, Lieutenant Zebulon Montgomery Pike, William Dunbar, and Thomas Freeman.

Robert Mills (1781-1855)

America's first native-born and trained professional architect. Designed Washington Monument, Treasury Building, Old Patent Office, and Old Post Office. Compiled first separate State atlas, Atlas of the State of South Carolina (1825).

Albert Boschke (1823-1910)

Prussian trained civil engineer. Surveyor and cartographer with U. S. Coast Survey (1849 – 1866) and later, the Corps of Engineers. Prepared two detailed maps of the District of Columbia, published in 1857 and 1861.

Philatelic Memento

for the 25th Anniversary of the

Washington Map Society

A special Monarch-sized envelope has been prepared as a philatelic memento on the occasion of the 25th Anniversary of the Washington Map Society. In the jargon of the stamp collecting community, this is known as a commemorative "cover." The cover bears a printed "cachet" that employs the logo of the WMS, described on the "insert card" within the cover. The stamp utilized on this cover is the 37-cent diamond-shaped stamp of Washington D.C. issued by the U.S. Postal Service on September 23, 2003. More information about this stamp can also be found on the insert card. With the assistance of the USPS Customer Relations Coordinator, a specially designed pictorial cancellation marks the date, May 21, 2004, of the all-day Anniversary Symposium: "Maps and Memories" and the evening Annual Dinner at the World Bank in Washington, D.C. The production of these envelopes has been limited to 500.
