On Conduct at Dances

After a summer of fun and frolic the school year begins and students have to adjust to the routine of classes, homework and intermittent clowning. Such occasions to relax and enjoy life are football games, dates, and dances. However, there are restrictions.

Many moons ago the Original Eleven (the first executive board, not football), along with the administration, established what they considered just laws to govern conduct at dances. They decided the same rules in effect during the day would also suffice for the foot-stomper. One of the rules, backed by state law, was that no liquor would be allowed in the dances and no one would be admitted if they had been drinking. It was a good policy, but posed a problem to enforce.

Mr. Ron Fontaine, dean of student affairs, admits that drinking could be a problem if left unchecked. And as in past years, this ruling will be strictly enforced. "Anyone found with liquor or who has been drinking will not be admitted, and will be referred to the police."

It may seem harsh to a few non-conformants, but it is the standing order since South High's beginning, and it won't be relaxed.

(Note: Look for this column in all upcoming issues—and if you've any special contribution to make, submit it in room C-17).

There's a lot that happens on campus and yet never makes the Rebel Yell, mainly 'cause it's just not important enough to rate a story all by itself. Therefore, in order to help alleviate such a gross problem, here is "that" column—just for those interesting little details.

Counselor Row is usually a good place to uncover a story, and it's not hard to find one. Anyone who frequents the Row is sure to notice the care each counselor gives his own door. The newest addition: A gold star on the door of Mr. James Riley, compliments of the attendance office.

Mr. Ron Steinman, teacher, businessman, actor, and pilot, apparently has traded in his old Thunderbird for a new fiery red one.

Be sure to notice all the signs on campus concerning "Bury the Bull Pups," and other such spirit-endowed phrases. Hard-working members of the rally club work terrifically hard each week to provide said signs.

Early morning physical education (like 7 a.m. early) has an added feature this year; it's coed. The lucky instructor, Mr. Mervin Huston, has some 15 girls and 25 boys. More about that later. . .

Residents near South High are serenaded every Thursday night (again). This is when the Rebel band and Rebelettes will be rehearsing their famous half-time shows in the South stadium.

Speaking of the Rebelettes, they're getting new uniforms this year, and so are their advisors, Miss Helen Felton and Miss Joan Church. After seeing the raw material last week (it is hoped that it is sewn by now) it is hereby predicted that the Rebelettes had better look out—their advisors may steal the show.

With new teachers come new activities. For example, Mr. Jerry Schultz is trying to organize South's water polo team. Likewise, Mr. Myron Klingensmith has started a rush for the slopes with his offering of a ski club. Rumor also has it that a dance arts club is under consideration.

Yea South! This familiar sound will be heard once again this morning at the rally, which will get us in the mood for tonight's game, when the Rebels host the Hanford Bullpups. An after game dance will be sponsored by the junior lettermen. "C" football, with South versus Shafter, will be played here at 3:30. For more sports action, a quadrangular cross-country meet with South, Delano, Bakersfield High, and North participating will be run here at 3:30.

Tomorrow, help the varsity lettermen contribute to keeping America beautiful by attending their car wash.

Monday through Thursday, sophomore students will face the usual state testing during advisory. Junior and senior councils will meet, and a gathering of the Farmerettes will also take place.

Tuesday the chess club will convene, and all interested students are encouraged to attend.

Friday, grid action will take place at Delano, where the Rebels challenge the Tigers. Cross-country will be at Shafter at 3:30.

SONG, YELL LEADERS LEARN TRICKS AT SQUAW

By PATTI KELLER
RY Editor-in-Chief

Out of more than 2000 students enrolled at South High, few are in the spotlight more than the ten spirit leaders; that is, yell leaders Glenda Rogers (head), Sheree Hale, Pam Morrow, and Kathy St. Louis, and song leaders Pam Hunt (head), Linda Dowlearn, Anna Hinton, Sachi Kuwahara, Peggy Pilling, and Johnna Tschudin. And rightly so, since here are few who do more to build and maintain school spirit.

All ten of the yell and song leaders have prepared intensively to lead South's cheering masses this year, beginning with the apprentice program which is a requirement to run for their offices. Additionally all ten of the girls attended the annual Squaw Valley festival last June.

According to Sachi, the excitement of the festival began before the girls ever got out of Bakersfield. They were scheduled to take a 1 a.m. bus as far as Fresno, but the bus was two hours late. When the bus did come, the hurried confusion was almost too much; head yell leader Glenda lost her ticket, while head song leader Pam cut her fingers on a razor blade. Nonetheless, the ten spirit boosters made it to the festival safely.

Once at Squaw Valley, the days were filled with classes and practice sessions. In their own divisions, the six song leaders received a first place in competition, as the four yell leaders took a third. What's more, the songsters went on to receive an honorable mention in competition with the whole camp.

With what little spare time there was, horseback-riding, swimming, and gondola rides up the mountain sides were available. But of most value was the aid and tips the South leaders received in their routines and spirit-making activities.

What the yell and song leaders learned at Squaw Valley will be passed on to soph and junior girls who wish to participate in the apprentice program. Though the first meeting of this group was this past week, anyone interested in becoming an apprentice yell or song leader is urged to attend next Tuesday afternoon's meeting.

Dress Code Still Bone of Contention

By SHARON FISHER

Going up! These two words simply define what's happening in girls' fashions.

Hemlines though, as one well knows, aren't by far the only things of importance in clothes. Today's fashions are vibrant in color, simple in style, and easy to wear. Joining in the scene are colored and textured hose to complete the total picture.

Again back to the subject of hemlines, South High faculty and student leaders, along with other schools in the state, have felt it necessary to include in their dress codes a two inch above the knee standard for skirt lengths.

This, along with the question of allowing pleated culottes (not pantdresses), and other items concerning dress, are to be explored and discussed with a student panel in cooperation with Miss Jeannine Thompson, dean of girls. Answers to proposed questions will be provided by the panel, and will possibly change the present dress code allowances.

The general consensus is that the dress code is not strictly enforced. One South High faculty member felt that the present code of dress is unrealistic in relation to today's styles. This teacher also felt that culottes and pantdresses should be allowed in normal school wear.

Most students feel that the subject of the dress code is pushed much too hard, and as result there is a trend towards rebellion. When asked what they thought of the dress code as it now stands, students felt that it provided fairly reasonable guidelines except where pantdresses and hemlines were concerned.

Foreign Student From Jamaica, Raleigh Stanley, Enjoys Attending South High as a Sophomore

By NANCY GREEN

Being far away from home is easier when the people are friendly. Raleigh Stanley, a foreign student from St. Thomas, Jamaica, says that his first impression of the United States was that the people were so nice to him.

Raleigh arrived in April of last year and enjoyed what he called a "mild" summer climate. This is quite a switch from what most Californians have been saying all summer, but Jamaica gets very hot.

His studies in Jamaica were geography, English, history, agricultural science, and Bible knowledge, which, except for the latter, are nearly the same subjects students take as freshmen here. Now he is taking the regular sophomore classes of biology, world history, speech, English, P.E., and typing. Although the subject program in St. Thomas is very much the same as it is here, Raleigh says he notices a great difference in the methods of teaching.

But life isn't all work; Raleigh did enjoy swimming during the summer. The main form of entertainment in Jamaica is dances, held on Friday and Saturday nights. Their football is similar to that played in the United States; rather than baseball, though, they play cricket.

When asked if he was shocked by the mode of dress, he replied, "Not really, although mini skirts are new."

Raleigh is staying with Matteal McCoy. He is a missionary worker who technically adopted him so he could come to the United States.

He is looking forward to furthering his education in America by going to college here. Although he has only travelled in this area as far as Lamont and Delano, he is looking forward to going to Disneyland.

HALF-TIME SHOWS PREMIERE TONIGHT

Tonight football fans will meet the '67-'68 South High Rebel band and Rebelettes. The half-time show marks the beginning of entertainment offered by these organizations at home games.

"It will be a terrific show if the band improves in the next two weeks as much as it has in the last two," emphasized band director Mr. John Briscoe. "It's going to be fantastically good," he further stated.

Following the first two quarters of tonight's game with Hanford, the band and drill team will perform the first of the season's traditional half-time shows. To heighten the mystery, Mr. Briscoe has promised some exciting thrills and the usual "something different."

The performance promises to be a good opener for the season by achieving a rapid beat with music representing Brazil, Spain, and Mexico.

Wes Clements is this year's drum major for the band. The drill team is under the direction of Miss Helen Felton and Miss Joan Church. Head leader is Shelley Shell, who is assisted by Sally Varner, Janet Woods, and Diane Lidgett.

Advanced Study Courses Provide Added Impetus

What gives a student the urge to take an advanced subject? For Diane Lidgett, it's simply because she likes it. Diane is doing independent studies in physiology under the direction of Mr. Clyde Klingler. Mr. Klingler began this program in conjunction with Mr. Dennis Ashlock, a biology teacher here last year. Mr. Klingler said it was begun because there seemed to be some desire for advancement in biology.

Since there isn't room or time for a separate hour in physiology, it is taught at the same time a regular class in biology is being taught.

Even though this is extra work for the teachers, Mr. Klingler said he believes that if a person is really interested in biology, he shouldn't have to take chemistry or physics. He pointed out that this course gives laboratory practice required for college entrance.

Independent studies in physics is conducted every day by Mr. Merle Wood during his free periods. This is open to anyone in his regular physics classes. The students taking advantage of this program are Suzie Heinrichs, Paul Graves, and Steve Smith.

The idea of this independent study is to advance the students' knowledge of physics. Many teachers, including Mr. Wood, feel that one doesn't really learn a subject until he teaches it. To make use of this, the students are going to improve their knowledge of physics by teaching it. They will study new junior high school material until they know it well, and then attempt to teach it to interested students.

Mr. Clyde Klingler guides Diane Lidgett in her independent study of physiology as she peers intently into the microscope.

STUDENT STORE NEEDS BUSINESS, BUT SO DO THE LOCAL DENTISTS

This year the South High book store carries gym equipment. It also has usual things like binders, paper, rulers and all the other paraphernalia of school. And, in this corner is also found jewelry, wind breakers, and stuffed animals. So this year the store has quite a selection.

The student store will be carrying the usual assortment of drinks and food that (dentists tell us) rots teeth.

Oh yes, that food that is supposed to rot teeth consists of ice-cream (ranging in price from six cents to 15 cents), cola, root beer, cherry, teen, and all of the various mixtures of these drinks.

Candy includes various five cent and ten cent candy bars, candy breath mints and the usual bag candy that disappears in a few bites.

South High Constitution Will Be Subjected to Proposed Revisions

Not all of South High's students loafed this past summer. While the rest of us enjoyed a vacation from the books, Herbert Jung, Terry Heflin, Macchi Schmidt, and Suzie Heinrichs, under the guidance of Mr. Ron Fontaine, gave the Associated Student Body Constitution and by-laws a going-over. New situations have arisen necessitating some additions as well as eliminations from the original documents.

One of the proposed revisions is to eliminate the office of commissioner of boys' athletics and combine his duties with those of the commissioner of boys' activities. Candidates for this office would then have to be approved by the dean of boys and director of athletics rather than by the assistant principal.

Another change in the constitution would be to give a vote to the commissioner of rallies, who is now an ex-officio member. The revision committee also recommends that Johnny and Jody Rebel, file clerk, historian, and class presidents be made official non-voting members of the executive board.

Because of the new grading system, (two grading periods to a semester) student elections will be held after the first, rather than second, grading period of the spring semester.

If the suggested revisions pass, the house of representatives will be granted the power to initiate or approve amendments and by-laws.

There are also potato chips and all the usual variations of these wonderful things. This includes barbecue tortilla chips, plain tortilla chips, and corn chips.

This year's student manager is David Reanyey, and the store advisor is Mr. Ron Fontaine.

Counselors Can't Control Recent Flood of Changes

"345,555," or at least it seemed like that to Mr. Cecil Briscoe when asked how many schedule change requests he had received by the deadline of September 13.

"Oh, I don't know," was the reaction of Mr. Richard Moordale when he was asked the same question. He sighed this in a tired voice that gave the impression of hopelessness, even though he had only dealt with about 100 requests.

Both counselors found that there was no particular area that bothered students the most.

"There were a few I.B.M. mistakes, such as boys in girls' physical education classes and second period lunch. Just very minor things," admitted Mr. Moordale.

Of course, a few requests were denied by both counselors, such as requests for lunch and P.E. changes.

So by now everyone should have his schedule, whether he likes it or not.

Cross-Countryers: Work, Stamina

By THEA MOSS

"It takes a lot of self-sacrifice and determination to make a cross-country runner," says Coach Steve Strauss. That's understandable when hours of practice of the distance men are taken into consideration. Every day after school, the cross-country team can be seen huffing and puffing all over the campus, through the streets, or down to Planz Park.

For all their labor, the cross-country teams receive very little recognition. As varsity runner Fred Contreras says, "You're by yourself. There are no cheering crowds." It takes a tremendous effort to just keep going. After all, "two miles is a long way," Fred admits.

"It's the best exercise there is and if you stick with it, you'll be a lot healthier," was Tom Molinar's comment on cross-country running. He is also a member of the varsity team.

Returning letterman Joe Vega tries not to think about the actual running during a race. "If you think about the distance, you get too tired. You've just got to keep your feet moving," was this frosh-soph runner's opinion. Joe also says that more men are needed to get a junior varsity team going. This problem was made evident two weeks ago when South had only two runners in junior varsity competition against East and Foothill.

Fred McAtee, another man from the frosh-soph team, feels that cross-country running takes a great deal of endurance and hard practice. During a race, when he begins to feel the strain, Fred tries to keep thinking, "I've only got half a mile to go."

The outlook is pretty bright for the frosh-soph team. The younger runners made an excellent showing in their first meet.

South High is the site for today's cross-country action at 3:30. Opponents will be Delano, North, and Bakersfield high schools.

Big Kids Go to Camp

A total of 12 South High students attended the student leadership conference at Camp Condor last month. The conference, sponsored by District 16 of the California Association of Student Councils, is held annually at the camp for the purpose of discussing problems students have encountered in student government.

There were four main discussion areas, and South High students participated in many of them. Jeff Burns led the discussion on leadership, Linda Brownlee and Jerry Mason headed the discussion on rally and athletics, and several students led the discussion on individual offices.

Mr. Ron Fontaine, dean of student activities, who accompanied the group, along with Miss Jeannine Thompson, felt that much was accomplished at the conference, and was happy with the ideas brought back to South High.

South High Varsity Injuries Limited, Says Coach Lafond

By PATTI OLSON

After a total of two games played by South High's varsity football team, the number of injuries is very limited.

Varsity Coach Larry Lafond commented that the number of football injuries received in football play over the years at South High has fortunately remained very low. The worst of these incidents occurred two years ago when Mike Oliver suffered a concussion and Larry Shepard suffered a broken arm.

So far this year an injured knee received by Phil Walker, varsity letterman, and an injured wrist suffered by varsity player Tom Parry have been the most serious mishaps. These injuries have kept the two boys out of action for a short period of time but both are expected to begin play again soon.

Other than these there has been only common injuries occurring such as a cleat scratch, a sore foot and a charley horse.

Stated Coach Lafond, "We don't like to glorify injuries." When boys spend the summer and spring working to get into condition they usually have no serious ones.

Another point Coach Lafond brought out is that a really good player and tough competitor usually won't let small hurts keep him out of a game.

What precautions are taken for the protection of the players?

This year new helmets were purchased. The helmets are the finest available to give the players the best possible protection.

The school provides trained coaches and managers. A first aid kit is kept nearby at all times. A doctor and an ambulance remain on call during all evening games. School insurance is provided to cover any doctor bills that may arise.

Rebel defenders Steve Narducci and Phil Spain zero in on a North High ball carrier in recent carnival action. Narducci is No. 23. The Rebs dimmed the Stars in the abbreviated contest.

Rebs Face Hanford Bullpups at Home After Pounding Porterville, 14-6

Tonight Coach Larry Lafond and the South High Rebels will host the Hanford Bullpups at the South stadium in hopes of gaining their second win of the season.

Last Friday, in their first game of the season, Mr. Lafond and the Rebels got off to a booming seasonal start with a 14-6 victory over the tough Porterville Panthers.

While South was "pounding the Panthers," Hanford was also chalking up their first victory of the season over Corcoran 19-6. Mr. Charles Rekosh, who scouted the Hanford-Corcoran contest, says that the Bullpups are strong, but if the Rebs make a good effort they will win their second game of the season.

Hanford plays a running game he said, but Lafond's defensive team will have to watch out for passes too. The Pups scored twice on aeriels against Corcoran.

South's defense shone in the win over Porterville. Tackle Jerry Mason picked up a loose ball and scampered 20 yards for the first South TD, and Eugene Walker scored the other on an interception. Mason kicked both extra points.

Raiders Show Offense, Defense to Good Effect In Halting Cubs, 14-6

Head coach Mr. George Van Pelt and the Raiders, having beaten the Porterville Cubs, 14-6, for their first victory of the season, will host the Hanford B's tonight at 6 in the South stadium.

The Raiders, in their victory against Porterville, displayed ability both to score points offensively and to suppress attacks from opponents. Raider touchdown Number One came from a pass combination from Mark Hance to John Finch. A pass from Hance to Kenny Hall, bringing the ball to the one yard line, and Jack King's run to paydirt from the one yard line were the key plays giving the Raiders the second touchdown.

The whole Raider team played well, but especially notable were the running efforts put forth by King and Ron Sessions.

In the B contest between Hanford and Corcoran last weekend the little doggies lost 20-0.

Harper's Riders Eager To Face Private Squad

By PATTI OLSON

Members of South High School's C-class football team are looking forward to their second game of the season with ardent anticipation. The Riders will clash with the Shafter Privates here at South at 3:30 today.

Last year the Riders defeated the Shafter Privates 12-0. This victory gave South a 4-3 standing last season.

The Riders got off to a fine start last weekend, de-tailing the Porterville Kittens, 25-0. Runs by Robert Foster and Keith Miller, a punt run-back by Foster and an intercepted pass by David Gallardo resulted in touchdowns. Miller ran over the single conversion.

Although Shafter's C-class team consists of all frosh this year and the fact that the Privates experienced no victories last season, Shafter High's athletic director, Mr. Neil Olsen, has high hopes for the team. Mr. Olsen boasts quite an improvement over past years. He also commented on the sizeable increase in the number of boys that came out for C-class football this year.

ASSISTANT COACH HUSTON INITIATES SYSTEM OF GIVING STARS TO TOP GRID DEFENDERS

Rebel spirit is high, according to assistant varsity football coach Mr. Merv Huston. A contributing factor to team spirit could well be the new point system devised particularly for the defense, which has been just recently initiated by Mr. Huston.

The purpose of the new point system is two fold. First, it helps bring acknowledgement and recognition to the defensive team as a whole, as well as to many individual players for interceptions, tackles, and other key plays rendered during the game. Secondly, it adds to the team's spirit and helps to stimulate a desire to play better, as the individual who accumulates 21 such points in one game receives a star, which is placed on his helmet. The star is a sign of recognition for service rendered on the field during the game.

Points can be accumulated as follows: three points for an individual tackle; one point for an assisted tackle; three points for batting down a pass; five points for a pass interception; five points for blocking a punt; and five points for a fumble recovery.

Dirk Van Pelt, having accumulated 21 points in carnival action received the first of such stars to be awarded. His points were won by five individual tackles and six assists. Mike Newby, Barry Mooney, and Brent McClanahan were among the defensive players who were close behind Van Pelt.

As previously stated, to win a star, all 21 points must be accumulated during one game. However, at the end of the season, a trophy will be awarded to the player having accumulated the most points all season long.

Debbie Smith admires Dirk Van Pelt's achievement for key defensive play.

The $25 helmet (new headgear was purchased this year for both varsity and "B" squads) indicates special achievement of the wearer.

Although Van Pelt's 21 points have been made known, no other points will be publicized until the end of the season and the presentation of the trophy. The players, however, will continue to receive their stars as they earn them, without being told their specific number of points.

The Rebels are now in preparation for their encounter with Hanford here tonight. Team spirit is high. The Rebels are ready.

New Facilities to Grace East Side of Stadium

One of the new acquisitions of the South High football stadium is the rest room on the east side. Construction of the cement-block building was financed by the school district. Since South is having more games played in its own stadium this year, the new facilities were quite necessary.

The idea of the rest room was first introduced by the president of the Parent Teacher Association, Mrs. Carl Hayslett. Because of her aid to the project, it has been suggested that "Hayslett Hall" be dubbed the rest room's informal name.

The executive board is presently contemplating a fence. This would separate the visitor's side on the east from the west side, which is for home team support. The fence would be 30 feet long, five feet high, and have two six-foot wide gates. In keeping supporters on their own side of the stadium, fights would be discouraged.

The stadium will also be decorated by foliage: shrubs will be added to surround the stadium fence.

The latest addition to the stadium, a rest room, for the "other side."
