Mr. Robert Gabbitts

Dedication

Senor, coach and friend are a few of the titles associated with the person to whom we dedicate this 1968 Merrima. With devotion, he has cast his enlightenment on the lives of students, faculty members, and administrators. This man realizes the value of a well rounded person and through his shining examples many people have come to pursue similar goals. For his qualities as an individual and as a leader we proudly dedicate the 1968 Merrima to Mr. Robert Gabbitts.

Jaime -
 Has logrado mucho
 durante tus cuatro años aquí
 y debes sentir mucho orgullo en esas cosas. Ha sido un placer contigo y tenerte en
 mis clases. ¡Felicitaciones por todos los premios y las becas que recibiste. Buena suerte siempre.

And a Radiant, Friendly Smile. . .

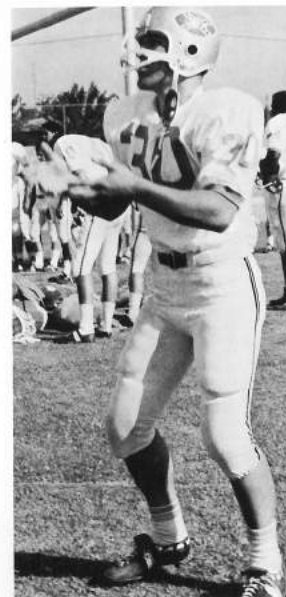

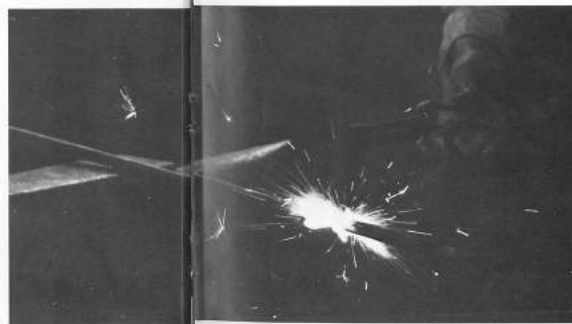

Linked by a common bond of loyalty, students aid each other in overcoming obstacles and achieving success, laughter, tears, and most important friendship.

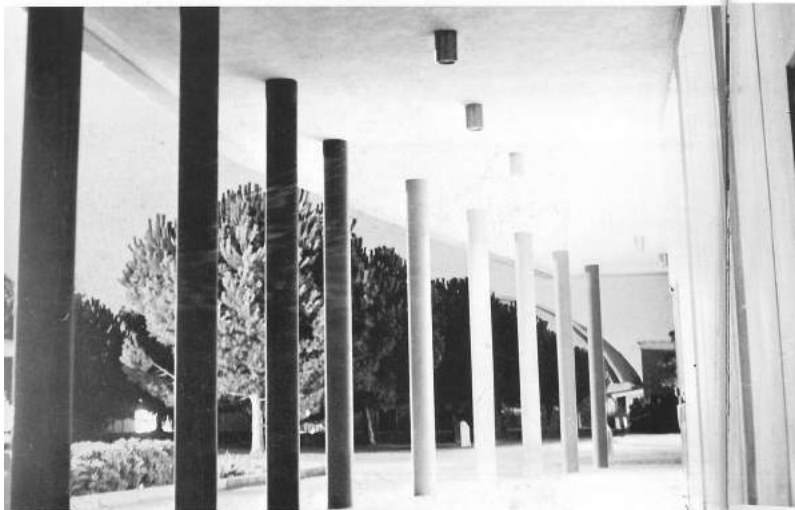

There will always be . . .

As long as some people strive for excellence, reject everything but the best, accept defeat with dignity, consent to victory with humbleness, and prove themselves in every aspect instigators in the search for peace; there will be always be that little ray of hope.

Life filled with light!

Intellectual accomplishment is not only finding the light of truth and knowledge, but being able to enlighten and direct the way for others. Through academic instruction many individuals attain this desirable trait.

Yearbook

A Creation

For the 1968 Merrimac staff, work begins during the previous year when eager staff members organize to choose a theme. Throughout the year, members spend hours of frantic work creating layouts, taking pictures, writing copy and performing infinite other duties to attempt to create a flawless yearbook.

Band and Rebelettes

Marching To Success

Through many hours of hectic practice the Rebelettes, supervised by Helen Felton and Joan Church, and the Rebel Band, directed by John Brescoe, have created many unique half-time presentations and have captured the interest of spectators. Placing first in field and parade competition at Selma and receiving a trophy in the Veterans' Day Parade, the Rebelettes have set another excellent example of originality and spirit which is so much a part of South High. The band produces diverse forms of entertainment ranging from sometimes comical half-time presentations at football games to serious contemporary compositions. For its accomplishments the band has the honor of holding a first place award won in half-time show competition at Selma.

Girls' League

Indefinitely Treasured

Providing enjoyment and memories that can be treasured indefinitely, the Girls' League presents an immensely successful Christmas Formal and donut eating contest at the Color Day Breakfast. Sadie Hawkins Day gives the girls a chance to chase the boys in a fun filled day which is climaxed by a dance. Spring brings an air of freshness and with it comes another venture, the Spring Fashion Show.

Fortitude And Desire

Functioning as a team rather than individuals, the Rebels combined fortitude and desire. Under the direction of coaches Larry Lafond, Don Ward, and Marvin Huston they stressed defense and greatly improved their game by the end of the season. Finishing league competition with a 2-2-1 record was certainly not an accurate measure of their progression.

Visions of Victory . . .

Coupled by Mr. John Henderson, the 1967-68 Rebel Basketball squad held its own in an evenly balanced league. Led by standouts Jeff Burns, Jim Reynolds and Mike Becker, the Rebels developed into a unified team by mid-season. This improvement was evidenced by impressive late season victories over North, West and Foothill.

Varsity Baseball

A Rough Beginning

After a slow start, the Rebels struggled to come back strong in league play under the coaching of Jack Towery. Led by returning lettermen Bob Rader and Jerry Mason, along with pitcher Barry Phillips, the Rebels strived to become feared opponents in S.Y.L. play.
