

Little Bit of Camelot in the Mall

"Theater-in-the-Square"—not in-the-round—comes to the Salem Mall shopping center

Thursday. Costumed thespians from Fairmont West high school and the Vandala Players will be turning back the clock to the days of King Arthur while performing excerpts from the musical, "Camelot."

"The Wonderful World of Camelot" will be presented nightly—except Sunday—at 7 p.m.

Under the direction of Gene Seeberger, the cast will stage its happening—and do their thing—in the Mall's center square adjacent to the fountain area.

OTHER ATTRACTIONS during the 10-day event will include: A costumed soothsayer and an astrologer . . . in booths.

An exhibit of 100 art pieces from Europe.

Costumed "peasants" hawk fresh flowers.

B R U S S E L S—Belgium's Queen Fabiola and America's former first lady, Mrs. Dwight Eisenhower, turned Thursday's concert here by the touring Cincinnati symphony into a gala occasion.

Mamie Eisenhower, wearing a bejeweled citron-colored gown, was making her first concert the "greatest of all." Not even the New York Philharmonic had been given a bigger ovation, noted Thomas C. Bower, vice president of the European Common Market division of the Procter and Gamble Co., who hosted maestro Rudolf, Stern and other representatives of the of the Cincinnati symphony.
