Miracle play in the works

By Kristin Clay

Another school year is well under way, and along with it the John Adams Drama Department. This year's fall play is the well known The Miracle Worker. Since it is a difficult play, many weeks will be spent in preparing the production. Rehearsals have a unique twist as the part of "Helen" involves no lines to practice, but rather pages of directions to memorize. The person cast in this part, Lisa Macri, must learn when to move, and on which line. Since "Helen" is almost always on stage, and constantly moving, Lisa Macri must know almost the entire script. Similarly, "Annie," the "Miracle Worker," (played by Lisa Fujawa) is a difficult part as she interacts with "Helen" the most. This part also calls upon the actress to learn to "sign," or to spell in sign language, and to speak with an Irish drawl. Other leads include Jennifer Frieden as "Kate," the mother, John Manier as "Mr. Keller," the father, and Dan Burean, a former Clay student, as James the brother. The rest of the cast is as follows:

Aunt Ev . . . Sue Zimmerman
Anagnos . . . . . Rick Ellis
Viney . . . . . Pam Schlossberg
Polly . . . . . JoEllen May Martha . . . . . Kristin Clay

Blind Girls . Laurie Martin
Marla Podell

A fairly large cast, it is made up of "frosh," newly involved Sophomores, students bussed from Clay, and familiar faces from past years. The combination of old and new performers should make this appealing and exciting fall play.

Under the direction of Mrs. Marilyn Goerner, the play will be performed on the third and fourth of December. Performance times and ticket information will be announced at a later date. Drama Club is just one more phase of John Adams High School that is off to a running start.

Corriente serenades Spanish students

By Craig Markarian

On Thursday, Oct. 22 a man by the name of Diego Corriente appeared at Washington High School. Corriente, who comes from southern Spain, is a professional musician. He plays the Spanish guitar. His music includes Flamenco and classical guitar that varies from 4th century A.D. to current 20th century music. Corriente is currently touring the United States. South Bend was one stop on his tour.

Corriente gave the audience some background on each song or ballad he played. Everything was improvised, yet he had a special program set up for the audience.

The audience consisted of Spanish classes from the five high schools in South Bend.

Learning Spanish should not be only to learn the language but to be exposed to many facets of Spanish culture. For only a dollar, Diego Corriente gave a truly enjoyable performance. It was a privilege to hear him perform.

If you happen to notice a few more air heads around the school these days, they may have an excuse. These people may be involved in the new aviation club sponsored by Steve Smith.

Being a pilot himself, Mr. Smith has made many plans for the club. On the agenda are many guest speakers, such as United Airline flight crews, military representatives, FAA officials, Flight instructors, Aviation Weather Forecasters, Hang gliders, and Ultra light representatives.

This is not an activity where they will be flying on a regular basis, however there may be some short trips or at least some familiarization flights. This club is not strictly for John Adams students. All parents who are involved in flying or interested in the club, are also encouraged to join.

If you or your parents are interested in the club or if you know of anyone who is interested, contact Mr. Smith at the pool.

The third hour ICT class met for breakfast with four special guests on Thursday, Oct. 22. Dr. Robert Curtis, the assistant superintendent of South Bend Schools, Lewis Powell, the vocational director, and our own Mrs. Katona and Mrs. Przybysz joined our class in a discussion over a rather late breakfast at Morrows restaurant.

The students in ICT will learn about money management, stocks, fire prevention, safety, finding and keeping jobs, and parliamentary procedure. There are a wide selection of fields that the students are entering in, such as meat cutting, nurse's assistant, floral assistant, printer, cosmetology, lab assistant, and many more. The class has its own officers and runs the class activities and fund raisers. The officers are: Sandy Reed-President, Bart Young-Vice President, Jill Bergen-Secretary, Richard Shireman-Treasurer, and Anita Berreth-Reporter. For the fund raiser this year, ICT is selling 82-83 pocket calendars for $2.00 and four pounds of popcorn for $3.00 including a coupon for $2.00 off a fourteen inch pizza from Barnaby's. The funds will be used for a banquet at the end of the year for employers, state skills convention, and various field trips. The popcorn and calendars are available from any third hour ICT student.

Doppleganger? Paladin? Lammasu? What is this, some kind of foreign language? Well, D and D aficionados will recognize this as vernacular used in the game Dungeons and Dragons (D and D for short), a role-playing game in which players act out parts in a magical world filled with incredible danger and adventure. A big problem with playing Dungeons and Dragons, however, is the need for a lot of people for an effective playing session. If you've ever encountered this problem, then the answer is the new John Adams Dungeons and Dragons Club.

The John Adams Dungeons and Dragons Club will meet during the activity period and once a week after school to play D and D. The sponsor is Mr. Krouse. The club welcomes complete strangers to the game as well as D and D veterans. If anyone is interested, please contact Mr. Krouse or Ted Liu.

The first meeting will be in November, as soon as enough people sign up.

DECA seeks to achieve these purposes by creating interest in all phases of marketing and distribution. Students participate in district, state and national competitive events and receive recognition for school and civic events. One of the activities in which DECA has received national recognition is as the largest student organization contribution to the Jerry Lewis MDA Telethon.

Blizzard of Ozz is a snow job

By Derek Lannuier

"Blizzard of Ozz" is the first solo album by Ozzy Osbourne, ex-lead singer from Black Sabbath. Solo albums seem to be the trend of the 80's. But Ozzy is not entirely alone. His new band consists of Randy Rhoades on guitars, Bob Daisley on bass and harmony vocals, and Lee Kersbke on percussion. As I listened to the album, I could find no distinctive style or thematic mood. What the album does have are songs varying from classical to philosophy and good, clean, hard rock.

The band tries, unfortunately to cover too many styles of music. This disorients the songs and makes the album somewhat confusing. Many of the songs on the album try to sound complex, but only result in sounding pretentious. For example, "I Don't Know" forces itself to sound sophisticated with lyrics such as "fools and prophets from the past, life's a stage, we're all in the cast." Come on, philosophy is an art in itself-not words set to music.

Opera lovers, this album is for you. Songs like "Dee" display classical guitar which is sure to enlighten all of you. On the flip side we find "No Bone Movies," an experience in degradation" - Michigan Street style. Such songs not only assault a serious listener's taste, but also his own state of mind.

But all hope is not lost. Ozzy is able to redeem himself. The album is laced with fair to good songs such as "Mr. Crowley." Although a bit verbose, it is sure to freak a listener out at first. The song begins with an eerie organ and smooth guitar. Lyrically, the song is the Satanic call of one man, Mr. Crowley, to the dead. People can appreciate a change like this because of its originality.

Another fairly decent song is "Steal Away (The Night)." It was enjoyable because of its simplicity. It displays good hard rock similar to the sound of Ozzy's old band Black Sabbath.

The album contains two excellent tracks. The first "Revelation (Mother Earth)" is done with a slow guitar, bells and gongs. The song displays classical keyboards, fantastic lyrics, and good, hard, fast guitar solos. Perhaps the biggest hit is "Crazy Train." For those of you who have not heard it, here are two suggestions: listen to the radio or kick the U9? habit.

"Crazy Train" starts off like a real train, with a guitar slide and an on-the-beat bass. From there it explodes into a fast-paced beat which highlights Ozzy's high-pitched vocals. The song deals with the modern world and the hatred it has for itself. As Ozzy says, "Mental wounds not healing, life's a bitter shame, I'm going off the rails on a crazy train." This song was enjoyable because it introduced a new technique in dealing with hard rock.

Overall I found "Blizzard of Ozz" to be a snow job. It drifts off into vague ideas and leaves the listener confused, as well as somewhat disgusted. As I said before, the album is not a total failure, but I dare say it is worth buying.

The meeker sex! The time has come

It has been said that women are the weaker sex. However, as history evidences the over-assertiveness of women has resulted in a feeling of humbleness among men. (Arise, men of all persuasion, throw off your bands of female domination. The time is now to right the wrong, terry not, be not long.) Why have 38 states ratified the ERA amendment? Because if they don't, they know women will cause more trouble than the whole movement. This shows a concession by the males due to their fear of women. Nevertheless, the male can also see that by equalizing women, they will no longer be able to nag about unfair conditions. So males may by the meeker, but they are also the "sleeker" sex. Julio & Raphael Ed.'s note - The opinions expressed in this article are DEFINITELY not those of the TOWER editorial board.

Adams High School -

Chefs' Salad, Yogurt, pizza, Taco, Doughboy-Burger ----The school lunch program in South Bend and Adams High still serves the high quality and quantity of food as in the past. Everything is made from scratch with no additives, artificial flavors or colors added.

NO changes have been made in the amount of food or choices students have to select from -- 3 oz. Meat or Cheese, 1 cup total vegetables and/or fruits, 1-2 slices bread (the students choice) and 1/2 pint of milk. New innovations are tried--shake and sandwich, baggie lunch are just two expamples. The price did increase 10 cents (from 60 cents to 70 cents) over last year, BUT the prices on all foods have increased and we have less monetary and food support from the federal government than ever before.

Hamburgers are all beef, weiners are all meat, yes, we offer yogurt and will continue to offer what we can and still be within the food pattern set down by the USDA in Washington. Catsup, relish and tomato paste were never intended to be counted as vegetables in South Bend---even the USDA has withdrawn this suggestion.

We in the Food Service Department are always willing to listen and to try new ideas, we welcome student involvment at any time.

Public school students in South Bend will get the same size servings, the same nutritious meals at lunch time every day.

Mrs. Leta Seal R.D.
Food Service Supervisor
Ed.'s note - last issue's article concerning lunch budget cuts was written by Student Press Service, not an Adams student.

The best kept secret

By Greg Burns

On Sept. 16, 1978, Jack Snead, an investigative reporter for the TOWER was given a routine cut-and-dry assignment to compile a report on the cockroach situation at Adams. After following up a couple of leads, Snead soon found there was more to the story than met the eye, triggering one of the most extensive undercover investigations in the history of the free press. Now, four years and 17,500 research hours later, the truth can finally be revealed as Snead has pieced together and single-handedly exposed what may prove to be the largest conspiracy scandal ever to hit John Adams High School.

The following is a condensed version of the 500 page report now on file with the F.B.I.:

"Cockroach /kak-roch/ n: any of an order (Blattaria) of chiefly nocturnal pests including some that are domestic pests." Domestic pests? Those little satanic creatures that love to scamper up a girl's neck in the middle of a geometry test, sending her into convulsions and disrupting the entire class, or haunt the football locker room, laying in wait inside an unsuspecting player's jockey-shorts are no longer simple, "domestic pests." In the past ten years, the Adams roaches have grown in strength and number and now have formed into a powerful underground organization to rival the Mafia itself. "It's gotten to the point where I'm afraid to walk through the halls anymore or even open my locker," explained one disillusioned freshman. Hard to believe? I didn't believe it myself until I began to ask simple questions and came up with nothing but "no comments." Why haven't the roaches been stopped? Who's allowing them to operate?

My first big lead came when I was interviewing a possible suspect in I.S.S. When asked about the roach situation he replied, "Roaches? Sure, I've got a few, man. All different shapes and sizes. One of 'em's solid gold!" I had this uncanny feeling we weren't on the same wave-length, but I knew I was on the right track.

Then last week, after following up over a hundred false leads, I finally came to the brilliant conclusion that I had been suckered. Proceeding on a hunch, I decided to confront the head man at Adams, Mr. Prizbiz, himself.

"Roaches? What roaches?" the principal stammered. I thought so! The classic coverup, I rest my case (hopefully on top of one of those despicable beasts they call cockroaches).

Astronauts Needed!

WASHINGTON (SPS) - If you've always dreamed of being a part of America's space program, you have until Feb. 2, 1982, to get your bid in.

Under a program sponsored by the National Science Teachers Association, you won't go up in space, but your ideas can. The Space Shuttle Student Involvement Project allows young people in grades 9-12 to develop experiments and projects that will be part of space shuttle flights within the next few years.

NASA and the science teachers association have announced Feb. 2, 1982, as the deadline for this year's contest.

"It has a two-fold purpose," said Jacqueline McGowan of NASA. "It's helping to further the educational expansion in the earth science area, and it's exacting large student response and interest in science and the earth science program."

Students must submit their proposals to the appropriate regional directors of the science teachers association by Feb. 2. Up to 20 semifinalists will be selected from each of the 10 regional centers. The 200 semifinalists will attend regional Space Shuttle Conventions at NASA research centers, where they will present their proposals to NASA industry scientists.

Marathon Blowout

IT'S THE ADAMS BAND MARATHON BLOWOUT! Eighteen (yes, 18) hours of music, from 6:00 a.m. to Midnight on Saturday, November 14, in the Adams High School band room.

Celebrity guest conductors and players will join the Adams band to play music--frivolous and serious, easy and impossible--from pre-dawn to the witching hour.

The purpose is as serious as the program is light-hearted. Over the past 10 years, Adams band members and parents have raised and saved $10,000 toward the purchase of much-needed new band uniforms. The band cannot wait another 10 years and, with promised public matching funds frozen, is determined to make their dream come true by raising most of the final $10,000 with this one gala event.

The Marathon Blowout is organized to secure funds from four basic sources: (1) Students will solicit underwriting from people at the rate of 1c or more for each minute the student plays; (2) underwriting donations will be solicited from individuals and businesses; (3) a modest 50c admission fee will be charged on an hourly basis; and guest participants will be asked to contribute $2.00 each.

Teachers will also participate, in conducting the band, or playing for an hour. Students, please come out and support the band. Any questions, contact Larry Dwyer, Anne Marie Dawson or Margo Peterson.

Adams student on her toes

By Moe Patty

For some young girls, the idea of becoming a beautiful ballerina or even a chorus line dancer is a very common one. Then for other young girls, taking ballet may be the last resort in order to learn how to walk properly, without breaking every bone in her body. This last idea isn't one very often considered.

but for Patti Henry, it was the only thing left for her parents to consider. Patti said, jokingly, "When I was about 5 years old, every time I tried to take a step, I'd stumble over my feet and fall on my face. I couldn't walk properly, so my parents figured if I took ballet, I'd learn to walk more gracefully. That's how I got started in dance."

Today Patti is still dancing and loves it so much that when her mother asked her to move to Niles, Patti replied that she'd move next year but wanted to remain in South Bend so she could still take dance.

It's determination like that that pays off especially for Patti recently. Just last month, Patti participated in "The African Trilogy." This dance show was taped at WSJV studio and was aired on October 18. It was shown on Bravo, a fine arts show. This show was affiliated with the JoAnn Brines School of Dance where Patti is enrolled in her classes.

The African Trilogy was originally designed by Neil Diamond and he also produced all the music for it. The African Trilogy is really the beginning of Rock & Roll and music from Diamond's eyes. The act consisted of three dances. One dance was a ballet and was put to the slower music of today. Another was a primitive dance symbolizing the beginning of Rock & Roll. It was put to the music "Solomon." The last dance was a parade and was performed to the song "Magical." The music to this dance show was one half of an album in length.

Why was Patti chosen? Well, in the area of South Bend, Mishawaka, and Niles, the judges chose Patti because they felt Patti was one of the best dancers in this area. The requirements to be in a dance show are to have taken a class in ballet and a class of dance.

"I loved it," (the show), said Patti, "It was definitely a lot of hard work but I loved it."

Journalists attend workshops

by Betsy Killeen

On a chilly, autumn Wednesday, many members of the Tower staff attended journalism workshops at the Center for Continuing Education at Notre Dame. Other schools from all over the area were represented, among them were Culver, Penn. and Clay.

South Bend Tribune managing editor, Jack Powers, gave a brief welcoming message. The speech was followed by the first workshop. After the first session, the students were served lunch. Two more workshops were held in the afternoon. Each workshop lasted forty minutes with a ten minute break in between.

From photography to advertising to writing, there was something for everyone. Students chose the workshops they wished to attend according to their individual fields and interests. The Tribune copy desk chief spoke on "News Layout and Design." Riley's journalism adviser, Lois Claus, gave a workshop on "Techniques of Getting Your School News." Tribune associate managing editor Bud Haber, sports editor Bill Moor, and staff photographers Ed Ballot and Joe Raymond also gave workshops.

The majority of the students enjoyed the sessions. One of the workshops' best points was the rare chance to exchange ideas with other high school journalists. As one student expressed, "I had a marvelous time. I enjoyed it because I got to learn what a high school newspaper should be like."

Here we go again/ Adams Loses to Penn

By Janine Anella

The John Adams Eagles took on the Penn Kingsmen in the final football game of the season. Fine performances and excellent sportsmanship were displayed by both the Eagles and the Kingsmen.

The Kingsmen had a 34-0 lead at half time, but Joe Ferry wasn't going to let Penn have the shutout. Ferry scrambled 5 yards for the touchdown with 4:26 remaining to play. This made the final score 47-7.

In the first half, Adams was held to a minus eight yards rushing. However, in the second half, the Eagles teamed up and gained 105 yards on the running of Joe Ferry, Sonny Oakley, and quarterback Todd Parker.

Even though the Eagles ended the season with a 2-8 record, they have improved a great deal since last year. Last year the Eagles only scored 22 points on offense, but this year they scored 132 points.

Outstanding performances on offense were turned in throughout the season by: quarterback and co-captain Todd Parker, fullback Joe Ferry, tailbacks Sonny Oakley and Kevin Williams, guards Ken Watkins and Lamar Taylor, slotbacks Mike Jones and John Gibbs, offensive guards Joe Pask and Steve Quimby, tight end Rick Ankney, split end Kirk Lamberson, and Center Brian Smith. Fine performances on defense were given by: co-captain Bill Martinov, Lenny Zappia, Chris Williams, Dan Tarwacki, Sean Lennon, and Brian Biggs. Other good performances were turned in by: Dow Goodrich, Bob McCahill, Steve Marino, Deon Ferguson, Marcus Griffin, and Vince Nino.

The team and coaches should be congratulated for their excellent efforts. We wish you all the very best of luck next year.

Seagal action: rough water ahead

In an overwhelming show of force, the J.A. Seagals defeated the LaSalle Sealions 101 to 70. The Seagals placed first in all, but in two events - the Medley Relay and the 50 meter freestyle, Tess Doering, Dianne Menucci, Mary Stewart, Jennifer Parker, and frosh Kim Beckman (50M freestyle), the Seagals pulled ahead with the best times of the season.

Their seasonal record now at 5-6, the Seagals will face Elkhart Central in the last and one of the toughest meets of the season.

Frosh, B-team football winds down

By Matt Bauer

In the Adams B-Teams' closing two games, which were both victories, the B-Team downed Michigan City Elston 14-6, and Riley 13-0. In the Elston game, Adams' scored on runs of five and ten yards by Cecil Gibert, who combined with Eric Youts, totaled over 200 yards rushing. The offensive line, consisting of Tony Hall and Robert Davis at ends, Hank Coussens and Tim Long at tackles, Frank Suski and Tim Weise at Guards and Matt Bauer at center, dominated the line of scrimmage all game. This gave Lynn Shaw time to throw to his receivers Jim Cauffman, Tony Hall, Dave Heck, and Robert Davis.

Harriers disappointed in Semi-state

By Kevin Miller

The Boys X-Country team ended their season on a sad note last Saturday. Coming into the semistate meet they had hoped to finish in the top four and earn a trip to the state finals, but instead they finished 7th a distant 95 points from 4th place. The #1 man Jeff Sypniewski, #3 man J.P. Simon, and #5 man Chuck Powell, each ran excellent races but couldn't save the team from doom.

Lenny Randazzo, the #2 man came into the meet expecting to finish in the top ten. At the 2 1/2 mile point Lenny was in 11th place and all seemed well, but, suddenly he became ill and fell back badly. He kept going but with about 200 yards to go he collapsed and had to be helped to the finish line by the coach and fellow teammates. Lenny was tended to by the coach and many others and then taken to the hospital where he eventually recovered.

Next year's team should be very promising. Although the top three runners are going to graduate, the next twelve will be returning. From what used to be at Adams a sport that people played only because they had no other fall sport, 4th year coach Dough Snyder has built one of the best programs in the state.

The girls team also finished their season by barely losing a berth to the state finals, finishing in 5th place. Linda Hemphill, the defense totally dominated the game, holding Riley to only two first downs. The defense was: Tony Hall and Steve Poland, at the ends, Tim Long, Chris Manke, and Peter Harris at tackles, Frank Suski at noseman, Marcus Monroe, Chip Stafford and Brian Knipple as linebackers, Brian Roberts at half-back, Eric Youts at monster and Kevin Smith at safety. The B-team finished their season with a 3-6 record.

The Freshman team showed much promise this year and are sure to have a winning future. The Frosh are, on offense: Milton Davis and Patric Claus at quarterback, Darnell Turner and Bill Weaver at tailback, Marcus Harris and Steve Gruenig at fullback, John Slafkovsky and Scott Terlep at center, Tim Voreis, Andy Griesinger, Dan Demien and Pat Bickel at guard, Jerry Nemeth and Allen Henderson at tackle, Tom Ready, Jeff Krieder, Kevin Decrane and Jay Cutter at end Robert Cass and Michael Rouse at wingback. The defense is: Daniel Handly and Andy Griesinger at noseman, Steve Pugh, Lafate Owens, and Brian Thibaut at tackle, Scott Terlep and Jeff Kridler at ends, Darnell Turner and Tony Lloyd at Monster, Brian Bartlett, Chris Druckenmiller at linebackers, Rick Fedder, Rod Romeo and Michael Rouse at rover, Robbie Evans and Tom Gillis at safety. The Frosh finished their season at 3-6.

Monica Witsken, Linda Lowman, Beth Carter, and Mary Rocha each ran excellent races. This is the first year that girls X-Country is recognized as a varsity sport, and the first year that a girls state tournament has been held. Three of six runners will be back for the 1982 season. These three runners provide a strong base for a potentially excellent team. If more runners were to come out, they would have a good chance to go down state. If anyone is interested, there will be announcements on the P.A. system.

For the team as a whole, the season is over. But Jeff Sypniewski will be traveling to Indianapolis to run as an individual as a result of his 4th place finish.

Paul Koscielski wins State finals

Paul Koscielski is a sophomore with one heckuva future ahead of him. Just look at his past: he has held the #1 singles position for two years, he owns a two-year record of 49-2, in his two years at Adams the team has finished 3rd in the state, and last, but by no means least, he captured the IHSAA's singles title in Indianapolis last weekend.

Paul, on behalf of the John Adams student body - congratulations on an outstanding season.

V-eagles: up and down Sectionals

The John Adams volleyball ended their season last Saturday, Oct. 31, with a loss to Mishawaka in the final game.

This defeat was preceded by an up and down series the Vol-eagles played with Washington. Although the V-eagles defeated Washington in the first match, 15-12, the Panthers came back to win the second match, 15-10. The Vol-eagles then rallied to win the third match and the set, winning 15-9.

In the second set, Adams faced the St. Joe Indians, who won the first set impressively, 15-1. The Vol-eagles, however, didn't give up, rallying to scalp the Indians 15-9 and 15-6, in the second and third matches.

Adams then met archrival Mishawaka. They played well, but fell to the Cavewomen in all three matches.

The V-eagles should be congratulated for a great season, as should their coach, Mrs. Ganser.
