CASTRO REPORTS RAID ON HAVANA

Says Ships Fired on Harbor

Taylor Ordered To Tour Bases

HAVANA (UPI)—Premier Fidel Castro charged today that "armed ships" sprayed the Havana waterfront with 20-MM. gunfire late last night, damaging public buildings and the homes of "families, women and children."

All of Havana's morning papers front-paged a statement signed by the bearded Premier, declaring his regime "has taken all the necessary steps" to meet a "direct U. S. attack."

Says Ships Fled

The statement said the ships lay about half a mile offshore and shot up buildings on First Street in suburban Miramar. It said the attack occurred about 11:30 p.m., and that the ships fled under cover of darkness.

HAVANA (UPI)—Premier Fidel Castro charged today that "armed ships" sprayed the Havana waterfront with 20-MM. gunfire late last night, damaging public buildings and the homes of "families, women and children."

All of Havana's morning papers front-paged a statement signed by the bearded Premier, declaring his regime "has taken all the necessary steps" to meet a "direct U. S. attack."

Says Ships Fled

The statement said the ships lay about half a mile offshore and shot up buildings on First Street in suburban Miramar. It said the attack occurred about 11:30 p.m., and that the ships fled under cover of darkness.

"The buildings of the Icap Hotel, the Chaplin Theater and other buildings occupied by families, women and children, received multiple hits from ((armor) piercing and explosive bullets which endangered the lives of their occupants," the statement said.

It made no mention of casualties.

'U. S. . . . Mercenary Agents

The statement blamed the attack on the "U. S. government and the mercenary agents it has recruited and armed."

"The Cuban revolution, which has withstood economic blockade and repeated . . . indirect attacks organized in the United States, can also resist and reject a direct attack . . ." it said.

"We warn the President of the United States that our people have taken all the necessary steps to confront the danger."

President Kennedy, meanwhile, dispatched his top military adviser on a hurried tour of American installations that would be directly involved should the buildup of Soviet personnel in Cuba lead to trouble.

Shortly after Kennedy reached the Cape Cod White House last night, his office announced that Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor would leave almost immediately on a quick trip to Mexico, Panama, the new "strike" command headquarters at MacDill Air Force Base, Tampa, Fla., and the Atlantic Command at Norfolk, Va.

'No Emergency'

Ostensibly Taylor's trip was to prepare him for taking over Oct. 1 as chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. Currently he is stationed at the White House as military representative of the President and his four-day "personal orientation" tour began from Washington this morning.

The White House insisted no emergency led to Taylor's mission.

But Russia's rapid buildup in Cuba of men, military technicians and modern equipment—possibly including ground-to-air missiles—was watched by the United States with some concern.

Clergyman

Raps Jackie in Swim Suit, President in Shorts

DENVER (UPI) — A Colorado church official said today that public appearances by President and Mrs. Kennedy in swimming suits are improper.

The Rev. Willis J. Ray, executive-secretary of the Colorado Baptist General Convention, said he wrote a letter to Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., asking if anything can be done about such appearances.

'FROM THE PICTURES appearing in our daily press," said Dr. Ray in the letter, "it appears that all decorum, dignity and decency has been thrown overboard by our President and the First Lady."

He also criticized Mrs. Kennedy, who is vacationing in Italy, for staying out until the early morning hours "while away from the U.S. and her husband."

The Baptist official, referring to a photograph of Mrs. Kennedy in Italy wearing a one-piece swim suit, said, "The garb Mrs. Kennedy has on does not reveal that of a First Lady of our great U.S. We believe she should honor the position to which the public has elected her husband."

DR. RAY had a few words regarding the President's appearance in a swimming suit in California last weekend.

"Has a former president of the U.S. ever been caught in shorts with a group of women hanging on him as he made a public splash such as our President did recently on the western coast?"

... "In the seminary our teachers used to warn us never to appear in the public presence of a lady without a coat on, and here the President is appearing with only his shorts on."

Bob Kennedy Bans Dog from Ceremonies

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Brumus, Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy's big and playful pooch, is in the dog house.

The black Labrador retriever was banished by Kennedy from all future Justice Department ceremonies after he misbehaved at the swearing in yesterday of Assistant Attorney General Norbert A. Shlei by nuzzling Supreme Court Justice John Marshall Harlan, who administered the oath.

We're Closer To the Moon

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The United States has moved one step closer to the moon with the successful initial tests of the first full-scale model of the three-man Apollo spacecraft.

J. Thomas Markley, project engineer for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, said yesterday the simulated spacecraft went through preliminary ocean testing about two weeks ago in the channel between the Southern California coast and Santa Catalina Island.

The Hoffa Story Starts Monday In The Journal

The Jersey Journal will begin publication Monday of a series on the amazing and complex career of James R. Hoffa and his powerful Teamsters Union, now being investigated by 15 grand juries.

Harry Ferguson, national reporter for United Press International, wrote five dispatches.

The series is especially timely in that the U. S. Justice Department in Chicago this week opened a new grand jury investigation into the operations of the 180 million-dollar Teamsters pension fund.

Pope Sends Aid To Quake Victim

CASTELGANDOLFO, Italy (RNS) — Pope John XXIII sent messages expressing "profound sympathy and grief" over the toll of dead and injured in the earthquakes that jolted Naples and other centers of Southern Italy.

His messages were addressed to diocesan authorities in the affected areas. He asked them to convey to families affected by the catastrophe the assurance that he would pray for them.

Pope John meanwhile ordered a sum of money and quantities of relief materials to be forwarded to the stricken region for distribution by the Pontifical Aid Society.

Greenville Street Fight Jails Four

Ten Jersey City policemen in five radio cars were called out today to break up a street fight at Ege and Ocean Avenue. A large crowd also turned out to witness the goings-on. Arrests were made at the scene and also at the Medical Center. Two participants in the fight were held on disorderly person charges. One of them held police at bay for some moments with a stick. Police identified him as Leon Scott, 31, of 20 Virginia Ave. The other man was identified as Richard A. Darby, 25, of 716 Ocean Ave., who was injured in the fight.

Taken to the Medical Center, Darby was treated for a scalp wound. Two friends, Herman Steward, 27, and Samuel Marsh, 25, also of the Ocean Avenue address, were arrested at the hospital on charges of loitering.

To Be a Good Talker, Be a Good Listener

By FULTON J. SHEEN

It has been said that conversation is one of the lost arts. Perhaps conversation reaches its lowest depths at a cocktail party where most of the conversation begins with: "Do you know——?" If one gets away from a personality into a subject, there is invariably an interruption by another cocktail drinker.

In order that conversation may be restored as an art, it is important to know its nature. The essence of conversation is that there is no assigned subject. If one sits among a group of men and assigns the subject, for example, the atomic bomb, there is not a conversation but rather a teaching by one of the other members of the group. A conversation is something like play, for the essence of play is the doing of something without a purpose.

WHEN I WAS A CHILD, my mother would send me to the grocery store calling me off a lawn where we were playing baseball. She would say: "You get the same exercise running to the store that you do running the bases." I did not understand the difference between play and work then, and the knowledge of the difference has come too late in life to defend myself.

Play Rams Tonight

Undermanned Giants Take Aches 'n Pains to Coast

LOS ANGELES — The New York Football Giants — at least those who are physically able — make their third start of the pre-season tour here tonight against the improved Los Angeles Rams at the Coliseum.

A crowd of over 30,000 is expected to be on hand for the 8 o'clock (PDT) kickoff. New York metropolitan area listeners can follow the game over WNEW Radio starting at 11:00 o'clock (EDT).

GOING INTO tonight's game, the Giants could be without the services of as many as a dozen players, and of these, six are starters.

Definitely missing from the lineup against the Rams will be all-pro halfback Erich Barnes and outstanding rookie linemen Bob Bill (Notre Dame), Bookie Bolin (Mississippi) and Lou Kirouac (Boston College).

Barnes, of course, is sidelined for at least five weeks with a dislocated left elbow. Bolin, who appeared to have won a starting guard spot until he broke his right leg against San Francisco last Sunday, is also out for a month and a half. Kirouac, another broken leg victim, may be through for the season while Bill is slowly recovering from a damaged knee.

BUT THE CASUALTY list doesn't stop there. Receiving stars Joe Walton and Jim Podoley, both with leg injuries, were reported to be doubtful participants in the Ram game. Ditto offensive tackle Greg Larson, halfback Joe Taylor, linebacker Bill Winter and all-pro defensive back Dick Lynch.

Don't go away; there's more to come. Bob Gaiters came up with a bad shoulder after his starring role in the 42-10 loss to San Francisco and, if he plays tonight, it may be only briefly. And all-pro safetyman Jim Patton hurt his left forearm severely and could be handicapped trying to cover the Rams' fleet downfield pass-catchers.

Despite the unusual wave of serious injuries, coach Al Sherman is not using them to alibi either the 21-all tie with St. Louis or the pasting at the hands of San Francisco.

'INJURIES ARE A PART of this game," says Al. "and you've got to live with them. Sure, we've been hard hit, but maybe it's better that it happened now than later on when we might be in a tight championship race. In the long run, these injuries balance out between all clubs."

On the bright side as the eastern champions go after their first win of the 1962 training campaign is the showing of quarterbacks Y. A. Tittle and Ralph Guglielmi, halfbacks Johnny Counts and Frank Gifford and end Del Shofner.

Counts, in particular, has been a revelation. The ex-Illinois speedboy, signed as a free agent this year, has averaged almost five yards a carry in two games thus far, with 11 for 53. He also has caught two passes for 17 yards and has run back four kick-offs for 109 yards.

Tittle and Guglielmi are passing well and despite the club's two losses, Sherman is highly satisfied with their progress to-date. Gifford too is starting to look like the Gifford of old. Frank hauled in three passes for 77 yards against the 49ers — and made it seem easy. Shofner caught five for 66 yards last Sunday.

Fan Saves Durocher's Life After Violent Penicillin Shock

Los Angeles Dodgers coach Leo Durocher walks out of Roosevelt Hospital today, still shaken by a violent reaction to a penicillin injection that almost cost him his life.

The 57-year-old former manager of the Dodgers and Giants collapsed in the Los Angeles club house at the Polo Grounds last night about two hours before a game between the Dodgers and Mets.

AFTER EMERGENCY treatment by Dr. Ward Hastings in the Polo Grounds, Leo was rushed to the hospital in an ambulance for precautionary measures. Officials at the hospital said he was out of danger and would be discharged today.

Durocher was in front of his stall in the clubhouse changing his pants last night when he suddenly collapsed and fell to the floor. Only moments earlier he had complained to Lee Scott, the Dodgers' traveling secretary, that he felt ill, and this was about 15 minutes after he had taken a penicillin injection for an infection.

Scott and two clubhouse attendants were the only other people in the dressing room when Durocher collapsed. The other members of the team already were on the field taking batting practice.

SCOTT and the attendants placed Durocher on a rubbing table, administered first aid and went to summon a doctor. A call also was placed over the Polo Grounds loud-speaker system for a doctor. Dr. Hastings, at the park with his two sons, immediately rushed toward the clubhouse, but got lost on the way after misunderstanding directions.

In the meantime, Durocher laid on the table and moaned "I feel like I'm going . . . get a doctor . . . call an ambulance . . . do something . . ."

Scott summoned Mets trainer Gus Mauch who administered oxygen because Durocher was having trouble breathing. Mauch was assisted by Dodgers trainers Wayne Anderson and Bill Buhler, Mets clubhouse attendant Herb Norman and Dodger manager Walt Alston.

WHILE ALSTON massaged Durocher's legs, Leo mumbled "If this is it Walt, go get 'em for me."

When Dr. Hastings finally arrived, he immediately diagnosed Durocher's trouble because of muscular spasms in his neck and administered adrenalin and benadryl.

"He'll be ok," Dr. Hastings said after administering the shots. "But three or four more minutes and it would have been too late."

By then, most of the Dodgers knew something had gone wrong in the clubhouse. When Leo came around after the shots had been administered, Don Drysdale, who started last night's game against the Mets, and Andy Carey carried him out on a stretcher and he was taken to the hospital.

"I feel fine," Durocher insisted. "I don't have to go to the hospital."

Dr. Peter Lamotte, the Mets' club physician, said at the hospital that "he's ok and resting comfortably." He, too confirmed that the collapse was due to a violent reaction to the penicillin injection.

Dr. Hastings, of Malone, N.Y., said he is a Dodger fan.

"I came especially to see them," he said. "They're my team."

As things turned out, he couldn't have done them a bigger favor by just being in the Polo Grounds last night two hours before the game

Mets Trim Dodgers For Hook Marv, Coleman, Kanehl Homer

By JACK LANG

Jersey Journal Correspondent
He's the personification of the Mets," said Richie Ashburn grinning . . . he's either real good or real bad."

Then, turning to his favorite target, Ashburn added:

"Just don't get too good, Marv.
I just hope you drop a pop fly once in a while to prove you're human."

IT WAS ASHBURN and Marv Thronberry going at it again in the Met dressing room last night after the 10th place club had pulled its biggest upset of the season by upending the league-leading Dodgers, 6-3, to trim their shrinking lead to 2½ games.

Thronberry and Ashburn are to the Mets what Abbott and Costello were to radio and TV. They are forever ribbing each other and pulling as on each other and, of course, with some of the days Marv has had this year, he's been sitting duck target for Ashburn's barbs.

EVEN CASEY Stengel horned in on the act last night.

The Mets had just trooped into the dressing room after their victory and Stengel stood atop the steps that lead down to the section where the players dress.

"Whoever heard of Hodges," he shouted. "You can't tell who's playing first now except that he's lefthanded."

It was Thronberry's night to gloat and he enjoyed all the attention.

Parlez-Vous?

Within the last few days we have read with interest (in the Jersey Journal, of course) at least three articles concerning the inclusion of a second language in our schools.

Latest was the announcement that Jersey City is considering adding a class in Hebrew to the curriculum. Russian already is on the schedule in several Hudson classrooms. French and Spanish are standard electives in most high schools.

Private academies start foreign language instruction in the second and third grades. A fourth-grader of our acquaintance — a native of Jersey City, by the way — is quite proficient in French, with a year of study in it behind him.

There is no doubt that this is an important trend in education. After all, Paris, France, is not much farther from Hoboken than Paris, Kentucky. Tel Aviv is about 10 hours away. Soon a weekend in Honk Kong will be as simple as Sunday at Spring Lake. Why should not the generation that will live in these jet-propelled years be able to enjoy them more fully?
